Carlos has a studio in Madrid, where he conducts projects of a very varied nature. These projects have a special emphasis on sustainable development and research into new forms of housing. Examples include:

- the Cortijo de las Ventajas joint-ownership housing project in Granada (a combination of 2,500 m² of co-housing with an agribusiness cooperative, and a mixed system of renewable energy production).
- the "Ecobarrio" in Toledo (60,000 m² of housing designed for other compatible uses as well, developed with Eleonora Guidotti and Manuel Pérez Romero, upon winning the European Award).
- the H↔H Project (a research project to determine the real demand for new forms of housing in Spain, conducted together with Eleonora Guidotti and the sociologist Virginia Godoy).
- involvement in different projects to develop housing for specific needs: for youth, for the elderly (with shared services), and for extended families.

His projects have won international awards and prizes, like European (2001), EMVS award for residential innovation and sustainability (2006), and two Belgian Open Oproep competitions (2007 and 2008).

Carlos has participated in numerous exhibitions, notably the 8a Biennale di Architettura di Venezia. His work has appeared in publications such as El Croquis (No. 119), Bauwelt, Bau, Arquitectura, AV, circo, Fisuras, and ON diseño, as well as Television and digital media.
