Dear Students, Dear Colleagues,

we have completed the new timetable for the first semester of the academic year 2020/2021 that will be published tomorrow on the University website.

The schedule of lessons will indicate, in addition to time slots and classrooms, also the modalities in which the teaching will be provided.

The University has chosen to ensure a significant part of the teaching in presence to allow all students to enjoy all the benefits of the university experience.

Thanks to the new Webex platform, which has less restrictions on the number of participants, all participants in the courses will be able to attend simultaneously to distance learning activities, even for the largest classes.

The teaching hours in presence will be attended in classrooms set up to ensure distance: we will provide information on the security details in the next few days.

Before the start of the courses specific information on possible shifts for attendance in the classroom will be provided. We reiterate already now that there is no reservation system but we will provide you with divisions in groups of students enrolled in the same course together with the Professor in charge of your teaching.

As mentioned in the previous communication, also the graduation exams, starting from the sessions of September and October, will take place in presence with the rules that will be communicated by the Schools.

Best regards

Ferruccio Resta
Rector of Politecnico di Milano
