 national ranking #11

One of the best Latin America Universities, PUC is active since 1940 preparing high professional profiles to answer to challenges of development, with solidarity and human respect.

The university is an open and helpful community, required and attended by local and international students from more than 200 schools in different parts of the world. The educational path in architecture is known for its adherence to the themes of the architectural, landscape and social design and its open to the contamination with other different disciplinary areas like Economy, Technology, Human Sciences and Engineering of the multidisciplinary Campus. The Contemporary Pavilion of Architecture and Design is hidden in the woods of the PUC Campus, located in a pleasant large green area, between the forest and the beach, crossed by a small river. It is composed by 3 main buildings with 25 departments and 13 laboratories, a central library and 6 disciplinary libraries, 3 auditoriums, Wi-Fi-equipped Internet areas and computer technology labs.

Points of strength

Interdisciplinarity, sustainability, a strong push towards internationalization and didactic innovation, the social-environmental dimension of the project and the development of students' critical skills are among the objectives of the School of Architecture and Design.

The quality of the students' learning and experience, and the development of their critical skills, are aspects particularly appreciated by the students and recognized among the School's outstanding features.
