LECTURE SERIES
Architecture and Sustainability: Matter, Quality, Form

The seminar, promoted by the Department of Architecture and Urban Studies and sponsored by Mapei, explores the contemporary relevance of the relationship between architecture and sustainability, identifying strategies and projects for overcoming the current and upcoming environmental crisis. Through a series of lectures, sustainability is explored in its technological, urban, architectural, and social aspects, focusing on the innovative use of materials and experimental technological and typological solutions. The invited designers and firms are among the main protagonists of a new architectural season, oriented toward developing new solutions to limit resource consumption and meet the need for greater efficiency required by European and global standards. The seminar is structured in five thematic days, where talks by practitioners are followed by discussions with academic professors.

5 / SUSTAINABLE SOCIAL HOUSING

This event focuses on the contemporary Alpine scenario, seen as a fertile context where recent architectural experimentation has yielded exceptional results. Territories distant from major cities have proven capable of generating architecture and architects able to interpret the challenges of our time with exceptional sensitivity and originality. Sustainability is one of these challenges, and in the Alps, a region that has always grappled with limited resources, it has found surprising contemporary expressions capable of moving away from a purely technological approach to embrace the many aspects of architectural practice. Our guests will share with us how the places have influenced their actions, focusing on their personal interpretation of Sustainability in Alpine contexts.
